*Dunning
Parish
Historical Society*

Dunning Parish Historical Society is a Scottish Charity (Registration Number SC020518). It was formed in 1992 and now has over 300 members including several overseas. We are committed to gathering and disseminating local history.

Dunning is steeped in history from the earliest times. There is an iron-age fort on the Dun Knock and a 1st century AD Roman camp at Kincladie. Saint Serf is said to have killed a dragon here, and there is a monument to Maggie Wall, burnt as a witch in 1657.

Join us in a voyage of discovery into the rich and varied heritage of Dunning. Go back with us through time and see the many facets which formed and shaped this community through the ages. Or help us record the life and work of the village as it is today, to make a historic record for the future.
